THE SOUND

The Sound was formed in London towards the end of 1978. Their members were Adrian Borland (vocals/guitar), Graham Green (bass player), Michael Dudley (drums), and Adrian Janes (percussion). Colvin Mayers (keyboard) was joined later.

They had progressed musically from their punk roots and were anxious to leave behind a name that still conjured up the atmosphere of 1977.

After the critical acclaim of the debut EP, The Sound signed to Korova Records, releasing a string of singles and two albums, "Jeopardy" and "From the lions mouth". These stirred a great deal of interest from both critics and public alike, establishing Adrian Borland as one of the most creative and mature writers of the post-punk scene.

Even now it's still hard to understand why The Sound never found commercial success. At their best, The Sound's excellent neo-pop bears favorable comparison to the Psychedelic Furs and Echo and the Bunnymen. Their debut album "Jeopardy" has a stark, beautiful quality, with the material given direct exposure rather than a production bath. Adrian Borland's vocals are sincere and gripping; the musical attack is both subtle and aggressive.

"Heads & Hearts" is one of their best LPs, a quilt of bright colors woven with simple care; the record's modesty and continuous flow make it a thoroughly engaging listen, a memorable album whose sum is greater than its parts.

The group finally called it quits in early '88.

One of their greatest songs is Total recall.

Total recall lyrics

It's all such a blur when time goes so quickly
Trying to hang on to the way that you'd like things to stay
You trace back the seconds, recall the details.

From someone will, to someone does,

to someone did, you know I did.
Oh, there must be a hole in your memory,
but I can see, I can see
a distant victory,
a time when you will be with me.

You cut me off just as I was starting to speak
the language you keep hidden away.
Just like the question on everyone's lips.

But it's not on mine where all you'll find is a twisted smile from another time,
another time, another time
Oh, there must be a hole in your memory,
but I can see, I can see
a distant victory,
a time when you will be with me

Another time, another time.
Oh, there must be a hole in your memory,
but I can see, I can see
a distant victory.
a time when you will be with me.
There'd be another time, another time.
Oh, there must be a hole in your memory,
but I can see, I can see
a distant victory,
a time when you will be with me.
I can see,
but there's got to be another time.
It's got to be.
